FAQ:

1. Q: Do Save the Date flyers need to include the Accreditation Statement?

A: No. If you are sending a save-the-date announcement contains only general information such as title, date and location, then it does not need the accreditation statement.

You may never use wording such as “AMA/ANCC/ACPE credit has been applied for” or “is pending”.

2. Q: When must we include the Accreditation Statement?

A: You must always include the Accreditation Statement on any marketing and activity materials once the activity has been approved for credit other than the “bare bones” save-the-date announcements mentioned above. If there is information about objectives, faculty, content, etc, the statement must be included.
