

EARLY CAREER VISITING PROFESSORS

The Early Career Visiting Professorship was launched in 2017 by CVRI's Early Career Advisory Committee. These professorships bring to campus a successful early career investigator for a series of events focusing on trainees and junior investigators.

Previous Early Career Visiting Professors

Stephen Juraschek MD, PhD – October 2020

Assistant Professor of Medicine, Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, Harvard Medical School, Boston, MA

- Research Seminar: Dietary Patterns and Subclinical Cardiovascular Disease
- Early Career Seminar: Making Headway in your Early Career

Viviany R. Taqueti, MD, MPH – April 2019

Director, Cardiac Stress Laboratory, Brigham and Women's Hospital, Harvard Medical School, Boston, MA

- Research Seminar: Quantitative PET/CT Imaging for Diagnosis and Management of Stable Ischemic Heart Disease and Coronary Microvascular Dysfunction
- Interactive Discussion: Value of Cardiovascular Imaging

Benjamin Prosser, PhD – October 2017

Assistant Professor, Department of Physiology, Pennsylvania Muscle Institute, Perelman School of Medicine, University of Pennsylvania. The American Heart Association named Dr. Prosser its 2017 "Outstanding Early Career Investigator."

- Research Seminar: Inotropy via Cytoskeletal Regulation
- Interactive Discussion: Establishing Independence: Lessons learned in starting a new lab