Dear Larner Community,

Over the past 20 months, public health knowledge and strategies have gained well-deserved widespread recognition and respect. We're proud of the Larner College of Medicine's role in training the next generation of public health specialists and delighted to share news below from Associate Dean for Public Health and Health Policy Jan Carney, M.D., M.P.H., about "Public Health Virtual," the recently launched new website for our public health programs.

Sincerely,

Rick

Dear Colleagues,

We are incredibly excited to share the launch of our new website: Public Health Virtual. The website was created to bring public health news, education, research, practice, and resources to our internal and external communities through a robust virtual platform. Here are a few of the new site highlights:

- In the Public Health Today news section, get to know the projects and programs, students and alumni, faculty and community partners whose innovative work is improving public health.
- The Education section provides information on all the graduate and certificate programs in public health, plus webinars, lectures and events open to the community.
- The Research section showcases the innovative research our MPH faculty are doing to secure better health outcomes.
- The Public Health Faculty section introduces the UVM educators, researchers and practitioners who are engaged in preparing the next generation of public health experts.
- In the Alumni section, meet inspiring alumni who turned their studies into rewarding careers in fields like vaccine research, community and international development, and data analysis.

Please take a few minutes to visit the new site and share it with your networks!

Thank you,
Jan
