Hello Class of 2024,

Congrats on this final but important leg of the medical school journey. This is the first of several communications about the residency application process. Many of you are thinking about doing an away rotation in the upcoming months. These are almost all centralized through the AAMC VSLO program (see below). Emma Faustner has pulled together some resources for your reference.

Away rotations are important for some but definitely not all specialties. If you are uncertain about your own situation, please reach out to your specialty advisors and/or one of the deans for students for guidance. I am also available by email if you have a quick question.

Here are the links for away rotation resources.

 - How to Use the VSLO Application Service
 - VSLO Student Essentials Guide
- The Funded Away Rotations for Minority Medical Students \(FARMS\) Database is a directory of programs offering stipends to students underrepresented in medicine participating in visiting electives.
- AAMC's list of URiM Opportunities for Visiting Students is a regularly updated list with key information about opportunities from institutions actively seeking URiM students.
- AAMC's On-Line Extramural Electives Compendium is a searchable database containing information about the scheduling of elective opportunities at AAMC-member medical schools in the United States.

Respectfully,
Karen
