

CALL FOR PARTICIPANTS

Experiences in Virtual Community for Black Women and Latinas interested in Internal Medicine

Research Project #11323

This research project is part of a pilot pipeline and retention program where a virtual community has been designed to engage Black women and Latina medical students and medicine residents. Virtual communities are online spaces where individuals who share common interests can come together.

Participation Criteria:

For Virtual Community, you must

- be interested in the success of Black women and Latinas in Medicine

For Research Participation, you must

- identify as Black women and/or Latina
- be a 3rd or 4th year medical student interested in medicine or a medicine resident
- attend a predominately white, not-for-profit, accredited medical school or college

Click Here to learn more about the research project.

Participant recruitment will end in June. The pilot program is set to begin early July 2021.

Meet the criteria and interested in participating?
Click Here.

The study is being conducted by Sacha Sharp, Ph.D. in the Department of Medicine and the Indiana University School of Medicine. For inquiries, you may email Dr. Sharp at sachshar@iu.edu