

Colleen Victor, MD is a child psychiatrist at the UVM Medical Center. Her research interests include health disparities and medical education.

Dr. Victor strives to treat children holistically by incorporating her general pediatrics training into her psychiatric care, as she treats patients at the interface of physical and mental health. Her hope is to continue pushing toward more equitable care at both the individual and systemic levels.

Dr. Victor finds that the most rewarding days are those in which she has experienced a meaningful connection with a patient or family and supported a child to better reach their full potential.
