

From: O'Reilly, Deirdre M. <Deirdre.O'Reilly@uvmhealth.org>
Sent: Friday, February 28, 2020 12:21 PM
To: StudentCOMServices <StudentCOMServices@med.uvm.edu>
Subject: elective announcement

Hello

We have the third offering of MD 1050 Teaching in Medicine: Residents and Students as Teachers.

Thanks
Deirdre O'Reilly

Hello,

Please join us for a new elective this year, designed to introduce students and residents to teaching in academic medicine. The 2-week elective consists of a reading week followed by a week of interactive small-group sessions with residents and fellows from varied disciplines in medicine. The second week of the course features attendance for one day at a Larner COM Teaching Academy sponsored conference, where you can learn and network with academic clinicians and residents from a wide variety of specialties that focus on educational scholarship, teaching, and mentoring. The small group sessions during the second week include topics such as Clinical Teaching, Microteaching, Feedback, Reflection, and methods for starting your own educational portfolio. Please join us to learn about effective strategies for teaching and learning in medicine!

For more information, please contact course director: Deirdre.OReilly@uvmhealth.org

Deirdre O'Reilly, M.D., M.P.H.
Assistant Professor of Pediatrics, Neonatal-Perinatal Medicine
Program Director, Neonatal-Perinatal Medicine Fellowship
Robert Larner, M.D. College of Medicine at The University of Vermont
Main Campus, Smith 5
111 Colchester Avenue
Burlington, VT 05401
(802) 847-1366