THE NOCTURNISTS

the NOCTURNISTS: New Collaboration

Friends,

The Nocturnists' podcast series on Covid19 and interactive story map continue to grow. We are especially proud of our most recent episode, "Insomnia," in which healthcare workers reflect on the overarching Covid19 narrative, its narrators, and the trope of the "healthcare hero." Our diarists ask: Who gets to tell this story, and how? How is this crisis affecting our mental health? Listen here.

We're also excited to announce a new collaboration: Emily and one of our audio diarists will be featured in Pop Up Magazine's spring issue, alongside prominent journalists, dancers, comedians, and more. For those of you who aren't familiar with Pop Up, they're an incredibly talented team of multimedia journalists who produce live shows across the country. We are honored to be a part of their upcoming web special, which will air on Wednesday, May 27th. Check out the trailer here.

We have received many notes over the last few weeks about how our podcast episodes make you feel seen and heard, which fills us with joy and gratification. We'd love more feedback about the project. What do you need to be hearing right now? Write to us here.

It would mean the world to us if you could spread the word about our work to your friends, family, colleagues, and other audiences. The more people who know about us, the larger our impact is.

We are also looking for financial support for our storytelling work. If you can think of any individuals or organizations who might be interested in sponsoring our Covid miniseries, please get in touch. This will make it possible for us to continue elevating your voices in the months ahead.

That's all for now. Sending love and strength, as always.
