Summative Statement	Applying to residency? The Residency Explorer tool can help.
Additional Information	To help MD and DO students and international medical graduates make better-informed decisions about where to apply, the AAMC has partnered with eight national boards and associations that play critical roles in medical education and licensure to develop Residency Explorer . The tool, which launched on June 26, is intended to give medical students a clear picture of how they compare — in experiences and exam scores — to applicants who matched previously to programs, as well as provide dozens of characteristics of specific residency programs. Explore and compare residency programs in 23 specialties and compare your profile to applicants who matched at each program.
