EXCELLENT question that I am sure many of you shared!

The day-zero test DOES NOT replace your 5-day prior test. We are aware of the 5-day-prior Vault test delivery challenges/delays. Please plan to take your test as soon as it arrives (regardless of timing), and if you are traveling and the test does not arrive at your indicated shipping address in time for your planned departure, please do not change your travel plans; email our COVID Test Team to alert them of the issue and we wish you safe travels back to us.

Planning is already underway for your day-seven test as well. The clinic is scheduled for 08/16, 8am-2pm. I will release the sign-up for your 7-day test on 8/10.

Kind regards and so much appreciation,
Kiersten

Importance: High

Hello Members of the Class of 2024,

Thank you so much for all of your work to ensure you can safely join us, this week. I just met with an incredibly dedicated UVM team, who is working to ensure you have your zero-day testing ready and waiting for you, this weekend. As you discovered, the Zero-day testing app is not up and running yet for you to secure a time.

In an effort to limit bottle-necks and any potential wait-times, we've set up a sign-up for this weekend's zero-day testing clinics, which are occurring this Saturday and Sunday, in the Davis Center, from 11am – 3pm. Please sign-up by 2pm, tomorrow.

If your quarantine plan and/or adherence to COVID-19 guidelines prevent you from being able to attend the two scheduled clinics, please let us know by signing up for the provided slot at the end of the sign-up titled "Unable to Complete Day-Zero Test on Saturday/Sunday" to alert us to this exceptional circumstance, and please visit the sign-up ASAP and no later than 2pm tomorrow.

Incoming students will now receive their CATCards at their Zero-Day test. Please bring a government issued ID with you to your Zero-Day testing time (Driver's license, Military ID, Passport, etc.). Your IDs will be activated upon completing your Zero-day test.

Please let me know if you have any questions. We can't wait to meet and celebrate you on Monday!

Kind regards and so much appreciation,
Kiersten
